Episode 43

Hello loves and welcome to another episode. I want to bring something super special to the podcast today, and this is actually an exclusive transmission on Saturn Retrograde in Pisces. And this transmission was given inside of my membership, the Star Stream. So the Star Stream is my astrology for business membership. I absolutely love it. This community is so lit we'll have a diverse community full of epic baddies doing amazing things, creative entrepreneurs, spiritual entrepreneurs and it's my space for astrology for business audios.

So I drop audios in the Star Stream in a telegram group five plus times per week. So when there is a major transit, when there is a major moon phase, when there are certain aspects, I give the astrology download and just channel, give my insights and let them pour through, and I align them with high level, precision, proven business strategies.

So it's a really beautiful fusion of the things that I love coming from my background of over 21 years studying the esoteric art form of astrology, and also my unique experiences, and creating a multiple seven figure business totally organically, with no ads, with no sales calls, etc. so I wanted to bring one of these transmissions in here because Saturn retrograde, Saturn stations retrograde at the time that I'm recording this, this is the Saturn retrograde cycle in Pisces from June 29th till November 15th of 2024.

And I just wanted to bring this in here to share with you guys, because I feel this is a really important transit for the spiritual entrepreneurs, the spiritual creators. It's an important transit for resolving and shifting any deep seated issues around self-sabotage, around escapism and avoidance. So that we can bring our highest dream visions for our life and for the world, and actually bring that into form here in the 3D, so that our visions and our dreams don't just stay floating around fantasizing in the higher chakra realms, but actually get grounded and anchored and architected and built here in this reality.

And that's what Saturn is really amazing at. But the retrograde is a complex time. It's a complicated time. So I felt called to bring that to the podcast and to also just share an invitation to anyone who is desiring more of this in your life.

If you listen to this and you're like, wow, that was really profound. That was really deep, well, imagine getting audios like that, usually between ten minutes, up to 30 minutes, five plus times per week by me. Every sun sign season, we have a new theme. So at the moment we're in Cancer season, which is our magnetic receivership theme.

So the strategies that I give that complement the astrological and cosmic information, I like to be really practical with things. In case you didn't know this, I'm a very earthy person in my chart, I love results, I love being practical, I love efficiency, I love actually doing the thing and actually creating the results and actually like slinging when it comes to all things business.

That's why, you know, here's my little niche that I like to hang out in. Astrology for business is kind of my thing. So I love the Star Stream because it's a space I get to be connecting with this amazing community, super diverse community that's active every single day in the telegram. And it's a space that I get to just pour my heart out to them on the moon phases, different aspects, different new planets entering a new sign, and all kinds of stuff.

So every retrograde, every major moon phase, every new planetary cycle, and a lot of other things as well. And some of the transmissions we have in there are just timeless, amazing high level business strategies. There's opportunities to request me to riff on something and it's a lot of fun. The bonuses are amazing, and it also includes the moon sessions that I run throughout the year. So I run moon sessions. Not at every moon; there are special occasions when I run them.

I'm just in love with the space. And I wanted to celebrate that and share this publicly in the podcast lab. So I hope that you love this transmission. And if you feel like you want to be plugged in to a steady stream of audios like this, this is a bit of a longer one. That's why I felt like it was kind of a podcast episode. Normally they're like 10 to 20 minutes long so that you can quickly plug in, and I always offer practical strategies, actions, prompts, social media prompts, sales like mindset things, practices like something practical to ground that cosmic information.

So we're not just theorizing and we're not just in a realm of concepts and abstractions, but we're actually bringing it down, rooting it, anchoring it down, integrating it, applying it in our businesses. And that's where we start to align our business success with the cosmic rhythm of creation, which is an experience of ecstasy. Honestly, it's ecstatic. It feels so fucking good.

So okay, that's enough for me. Let's get into the transmission. I hope you like it. And if you want more of that and you want to be plugged into that, I invite you to join the Star Stream, which is just $97 a month. All links are always in the show notes. So I hope that you enjoy. Thank you so much for tuning in.

Let's talk about Saturn Retrograde, my loves Saturn stationed retrograde on the 30th or the 29th of June, depending on your time zone, and will remain retrograde until November 15th. So for the majority of the rest of this year, we have Saturn Retrograde in Pisces. Saturn in Pisces to begin with is a really interesting transit because Saturn is all about form, structure, discipline, organization, and Pisces as a sign of unity, consciousness, transcendence, altered states of consciousness.

It's the sign of spirit. It's the sign of vibration, the things that are invisible. It's the sign of dreams. It's the sign of things that are beyond our comprehension. And it's the sign of the subconscious mind, which is by nature things we're not conscious of. So it's really interesting when Saturn, which is like an architect and is so pragmatic and is so disciplined and strategic, it's kind of like this architect floating in this infinite, vast sea of energy.

And it's like, okay, so it's a little bit uncomfortable in Pisces, but it's actually such a beautiful transit because it's all about bringing our dreams to reality. So Pisces is those higher dreams, the dream vision that we have for this life and for this world. And Saturn is that energy of like, all right, well, if this is the dream, let's fucking build it.

What do we need to do to build it? What's the plan? What's the next step? So Saturn is bringing the formlessness of Pisces and the dreams that are beyond form into the world of form. And that's a very quantum creation kind of energy. And this is many people's Saturn return. As you know, I do have a whole masterclass on this.

If it's your Saturn return, I highly recommend that you do that masterclass. For all of us, you know, this is something that is already impacting us. I don't know if anyone else has felt it. It's been about three days since Saturn Station retrograde. I have big time been feeling it for me. It's in my eighth house and I did post the horoscopes for Saturn Retrograde by house just a little bit above in this same thread.

[Note: The horoscopes referenced are a bonus exclusive to the Star Stream. Star Stream members also receive 50% off the Saturn in Pisces masterclass]

So this is a time where the themes of Saturn are going to be expressing and are expressing in a different way, in a way that forces us to look with them in a way that challenges us, and in a way they can be a little bit confusing as well, because Pisces is a bit of a confusing sign. The shadows of Pisces include escapism, avoidance, rose colored glasses, delusion and deception.

And Saturn is a planet of rules and karma, time commitments, restriction and being forced to evolve through the obstacles that we face. So it's a really powerful, really interesting combo of energies to not only have Saturn in Pisces in the infinite ocean of energy that is Pisces, but retrograde as well. So there's a lot coming through with this when it comes to Saturn as the planet of responsibility and Pisces

o r a c l e
PODCAST

shadow being avoidance and escapism, definitely a lot is going to come into the light about our own patterns of escaping our responsibility, our own patterns of avoiding responsibility.

And the thing with retrogrades is that it will bring our karma to us. So what that means is, if we have been avoiding certain things, that karma is going to land at our fucking feet right now, that karma is going to come right in front of us in our path, because Saturn is obstacles to overcome. So if you have been successfully avoiding a certain aspect of your healing, a certain aspect of your responsibility, a certain aspect of your spiritual development, the Saturn retrograde is going to be exposing that. The Saturn retrograde is going to bring it in front of your face.

So even if you've lived your whole life able to avoid this certain part of things, Saturn Retrograde is likely to make things much harder for you. so that you can learn this lesson. And so the way to work with it is to be very willing and cooperative. That's the keyword: cooperative. Okay. And so something to remember.

I was just chatting with one of my babes in the Voxer mastermind that I'm running right now, which is a VIP upgrade in Rich and Resources, reminding her that Saturn always rewards hard work. So Saturn is not out here to get you to make you feel shit to whatever. Like Saturn is not here to punish us at all.

Saturn is like the wise, strict sensei that's had enough of our shit and wants us to also have enough of our bullshit. And anyone who's made a really big change in their life, or like, quit smoking or just had a huge lifestyle change, like a huge, lasting lifestyle change, you know that there's just a point where you get sick of your shit, you're just sick of your own shit.

And that's the point I think a lot of us are going to reach. Either we already are there or we are going to reach that to a higher degree. Throughout at some point this Saturn retrograde cycle, which goes until the 15th of November. So some things that are really powerful at this time is to tie up any loose ends, like if you owe people money, if you have left something undone, if you are just anywhere that you

o r a c l e
PODCAST

know you're not in the fullest, fullest, fullest integrity that you're capable of, that would be an amazing thing to just like, rip the band aid off, lean in, do the thing.

Because Saturn will reward you. Saturn always rewards hard work. But the thing is, if we're resisting it, if we choose to keep being in la la land, like la la la la, I can't hear you like I don't see it. Nope. because that's the Pisces shadow, right? It's the escapism. It's the overly dilute energy. It's, I'm just going to be in my dream and not look at the reality of things, that's where we're going to struggle with this transit.

That's where we're going to struggle with this transit. But when we are willing to face ourselves, to look at ourselves, to call ourselves out on our patterns, to call ourselves out on our ways that we cope, that are not healthy to us, calling ourselves out on the ways that we're avoiding our true responsibilities, calling ourselves on the way that we are using certain things to escape from reality.

Saturn is a planet that's about reality. It's like time. It's karma, it's structure. And these are very 3D reality kind of experiences. And Pisces can sometimes feel so like transcended beyond that, almost as if that's not real, but it is real. Yes, in a way, time is not real, but in another way, it is very fucking real.

All our lives revolve around it, right? So Saturn is really wanting to assist us to mature, to mature to the full potential that we can be. And this is part of us on our soul business path. This is part of us on our legacy path. Saturn rules legacy. Without structure and without discipline, great works don't stand the test of time.

So if you think of a feat of engineering and architecture, if you think of the Golden Gate Bridge, you know that thousands, tens of thousands, millions of people across, you know, a lot of people cross that bridge. A lot of vehicles cross that bridge. Remember, Saturn rules restriction. If there weren't restrictions on how that bridge could be made and what materials could be used, it wouldn't have lasted this long, right?

o a t h
o r a c l e

with Agesha Durrani

We can't, we don't just go freestyle making the Golden Gate Bridge and just use whatever materials we got lying around. It's like, no, there's a lot of things we cannot use. And that restriction is part of mastery in this really specific Saturnian way. This is going to be a time that karma is going to come to bite people in the ass.

And also it can be a time that we're receiving positive karma from things we've done in the past, because retrograde seasons bring things back from the past. So if you are proud of the way that you have navigated life, you could be looking at receiving a windfall. You could be looking at receiving some positive breaks or lucky breaks, or just having a very internal journey that is deepening and evolving your relationship with responsibility and legacy without necessarily a bunch of external challenges.

And it's not to scare you about this transit. It's really not scary. Saturn is retrograde about a third of the time. Saturn is retrograde about one third of every year. Okay, so the last time that it was retrograde was last year in 2023, from June 17th to early November, like November 5th or something like that.

Sorry, I don't have the numbers right in front of me, so I'm just pacing around my house as usual. and so if you think about any themes that were active for you at that time from June 17th till early November of 2023, some of those things might be coming back up now as well. Some of those themes, and it may be you, we may be reaching another layer of maturity with those same themes.

That time was really challenging for me and a lot of those same themes. It's not that they're coming up again at the moment, it's that I have reached such a new level of maturity and mastery with those very things that were challenging me last year, because I was really intentional about leaning into my healing and really facing the ways that I wasn't seeing myself, really facing the ways that I was not taking responsibility for my experiences in my life.

One of the shadows of Pisces is being in victim energy, and it can be really challenging to understand how that's not serving us, especially if we have been literal victims. And this was something that I

o a t h
o r a c l e

struggled with when it comes to the New Age spiritual world, that can sound very gaslighting when they say, oh, don't be like in victim, blah blah blah. When you actually have been a victim, when you've been a victim of theft and you've been a victim of abuse, it can be really upsetting to hear that in the new spiritual world.

The thing is, there is truth to that. But a lot of the times the people saying it are not actually truly integrated and embodied in that truth. And it's more of just new age fluff, right? But the truth is unfair things that happened to us in the past, they may have been totally unjust, they may have been totally unfair, but it's still our responsibility to heal. It's still our responsibility to make life the masterpiece that it can be. And it's never too late for us to do that.

So I had a new level of that come through last year during the similar dates of Saturn retrograde, because I was going through some really, really hard stuff during that time, including a breakup of where I was in a situation where someone was treating me really, really badly. And through that experience, afterwards, I had to heal and really look at, okay, yeah, that was really wrong of that person to do this, that and the other and like that, it added on.

And I was really in a lot of victim energy because I felt taken from; I felt used. This person owes me money and I trusted them blah blah blah. And like, yeah, that's all true. And why did I stick around too long for that person? Why did I overlook red flags? Why did I allow that?

And so, you know, this is where the responsible piece comes in. And it's not about blaming ourselves. It's actually very liberating and empowering to know I am responsible for my life. And recognizing that that was showing me a place that I needed to heal more deeply. So now that I reflect on that period of time of the last Saturn retrograde, which is also in Pisces, I can reflect on all of the work that I've done on myself to heal so deeply and to create and restore a feeling of wholeness deep inside of me.

So I really look forward to this retrograde and the karma that it's going to bring, because there we can be receiving good karma for the work that we put into. And I just, I know that I really put in the work, I put in the work there. So as we go through this cycle, which is, you know, months long, it's until the 15th of November, there can be times where we might feel more tired, okay.

Especially in Pisces. So something that I notice with Saturn retrograde is that we can have more of a challenge in showing up to things, but sometimes that is actually really serving us because some of those things that we think we need to show up to are not our true responsibility. This is also a theme that I've seen with people with Saturn retrograde in their natal chart, where something that they're learning is what their true responsibilities are, and that we might actually have less energy and less, even if we feel very motivated and driven, to do things that actually don't align with our true responsibilities.

And this feels connected with some conversations I was having in the mastermind today around like posting consistently when we really just want to rest or trying to force ourselves to show up and sell when we really just want to rest, when we're at the brink of tears and we're trying to push ourselves. It's like, is that really the true responsibility? Is that really healthy discipline in alignment with our soul business sacred success?

So part of it, I believe, is also going to be around deconstructing because retrograde is reexamining, retrograde is reflection, retrograde - and when we have it in Saturn, which is such a construction architectural energy, it's going to be reconstructing, deconstructing, and then later we'll reconstruct. But it's more of the deconstruct around the internalized toxic corporate capitalism, because one of the beautiful things with Pisces and Saturn is Pisces is spiritual and imaginative and artistic, and Saturn is like a legacy and achievement, and that there's an exalted form of that legacy and achievement is a good thing when it's healthy.

So it's actually going to be so powerful for the ambitious mystics, for the spiritual entrepreneurs, for the creatives who are learning to take business seriously. Because that's one of the highest expressions of

o a t h
o r a c l e

this combo together, is actually taking that raw talent and that spiritual energy and these frequencies and these essences, and actually building something with it, building something that stands the test of time, building something that makes an impact, building something that ends up being our legacy.

Building something that is a structure that is actually a structure of success and support that we continue to benefit from and sustain ourselves from. But along the way, we need to deconstruct the internalized capitalism, because that's not the highest frequency expression of our sacred success. So I believe that this transit is really going to be showing us what is truly important to us and what is not, what is truly our responsibility and what is not, because often people are actually taking responsibility for things that aren't their responsibility, like what other people think about you is not your responsibility.

If everyone likes you, is not your responsibility. Whether someone unsubscribes to your email list or not, that's not your responsibility. How many people are going to buy, that's not your responsibility. When we are preoccupied with that, and then we are actually ignoring what our true responsibility is, which is what is within my power to control.

It's my vibration. It's my dominant emotions and energies. It's the actions that I take. It's the integrity of aligning my words with my actions and aligning my actions with my values. It's showing up in a way that feels good and right and correct for me, and correct for my design. It's living in alignment with a certain code of ethics. It's being responsible for my actions. It's being responsible for my healing. It's taking action towards the dreams that I have, and not just wishing and hoping.

So often we're taking responsibility for stuff, but it's not necessarily our stuff. Holding on to the emotions of other people in our family or carrying things for other people, especially with that being in Pisces where there's this big empath energy, right?

o a t h
o r a c l e

It's a very empath energy, that Piscean energy. So I feel that another part of it's going to be about erecting the correct boundaries and having energetic hygiene. Pisces is a very boundaryless and formless sign. And that's the beauty of it is, we are all one. We are part of this wild creation soup. Right? And that's so beautiful. We're all connected.

But at the same time, we should not be out here absorbing the energy of haters online and narcissistic family members and narcissistic lovers and whatever. We're not here to be absorbing all that because we can't actually process that energy. We can only hold it and we can hold it for our entire life if we want to.

Some things that are going to be great for this time, ground this out with some practical energies. Knowing and being clear on what is your responsibility, knowing what that is. What is your standard that you want to show up for your business for? Is it be perfect all the time, post every day or be always, always, always consistent?

Is that really your standard for sacred success? Is that really your vibrational and frequency standard that you want to be a role model of, that you want to emanate and hold? No it's not. So decide what your sacred success standards are. To me, it's showing up from a place of desire, and it's also my responsibility to fill up my cup.

It's my responsibility to take good care of my body so that I'm in more of an environment of inspiration, right? I see inspiration as my job, like creating an inspiring life. getting out for walks, reading inspiring things, having mentorship, beauty around me. I see that as part of my job so that I'm creating (we talk about this in my program, Sacred Social Media) the conditions for creativity.

I also want to say now it's creating the conditions for inspiration so that my actions are coming from a space of inspiration. But I'm not outsourcing that inspiration like, oh, life just has to inspire me. It's

o a t h
o r a c l e
PODCAST

like, no, that's my responsibility. That's my responsibility to switch up the energy and go out for a walk when I feel like I'm in a stagnant energy at home trying to get out of content or something like that.

So taking responsibility for what is truly ours. And the main part of that is our words, our energy and our actions. Those are the main parts, right? Being in integrity and knowing what that means to us and knowing what it doesn't mean to us and catching ourselves out because sometimes we can. Part of escaping and avoiding our true path and our true responsibilities can be being overly preoccupied with other people and their path and their struggles, and being their unpaid therapist and being in codependent type relationships.

So that's another thing to be aware of, because that's another shadow of Pisces being in rescuer energy, where we're conveniently ignoring our own responsibilities. That's another big piece for this time is getting clear on what actions truly move the needle forward in business, and also being willing and able to let go of attachments. You might have to let go of showing up perfectly, to posting all the time, to quote unquote doing all the things and actually realizing it's more important to be in an energy of inspiration.

Consistency is important, but what consistency means, it doesn't mean posting every single day for an entire year. That's not what consistency actually means. So get clear on your definitions of things. Another big piece for this time is boundary setting. Boundaries of what you're available for, what you're not available for. Pisces can be very boundaryless, and if we have been boundaryless, the Saturn retrograde is likely to bring some karma to us for that and likely to teach us some hard lessons around that, right?

So we want to cooperate. We want to learn the lessons now, so we don't need to get our butt kicked too much during the retrograde cycle. Energy hygiene is a really big piece here. I have a whole program on that. It's called Mystic Magnetism. By the way, all the programs I mentioned are included in the Temple. You can always message if you want to upgrade into that.

Energy hygiene. Ultimately, it's about clearing your energy of anything that's not yours and filling yourself up with your own energy. So to give everyone a practice, that's my most used thing is just breathing your energy back to you, calling all your energy back to you and inhaling it. And as you're doing that, you're seeing this light fly to you from 360 degrees and you're breathing it in and filling your body with your own energy, calling it back from all timelines, from all lifetimes, from any people that it might have gotten caught up with.

Because energy is kind of beyond time, right? It doesn't matter if something happened years ago, sometimes our energy can still be tied up there. So we fill ourselves up with our own energy. And then on the exhale you just exhale anything that is not yours, anything that's not yours. Because we can be holding on to the energy of our mom, the energy of our best friends, the energy of ex-lovers, especially sexual energy as well, sexual partners.

So just being in a practice of energetic hygiene, it's like rinsing yourself out with your own energy. You're filling, it's like crystal crystalline, pure water or beautiful, heavenly energy. And so filling yourself up with your own energy, seeing yourself with your third eye, seeing light filling your body. And then every exhale, it's rinsing out any energy that's not yours.

You don't need to know the story. You don't need to know, like, oh my God, this was in ancient Egypt. And this happened. If you know it, that's cool. But you don't need to know it to take out the trash. You don't need to know it to know that, to let it go. Okay.

I always start with releasing energy that's not mine. And then in my final breath when I do this, I will release energy that is mine that's ready to go. So just stagnant emotional energy, that kind of thing. And also something that might be really helpful in my office suite is Quantum Emotion, the quantum emotion transmission, which is all about alchemy using energies of the past, past traumas, memories,

o a t h
o r a c l e

with Agesha Durrani

suppressed emotions, etc. this would be a great cycle to do that type of work in, because Saturn loves structure and Pisces is energy.

So Saturn loves having a course or like module one, module two, module three. Saturn loves to go on that linear path of mastery and maturing through following a structured path. So that could be, whether you want to learn it from me or something else. Learning more about energy during this time is going to really help us with our discernment.

When it comes to that practice, I think that this is the one I do the most because it's so easy to do. You can just do it multiple times in the day. I like to start my day with it. I like to do it after client calls. So that's just one really simple one that I shared. And I'm sure you all have some of your own practices, but grounding into the earth is always a good idea as well.

When it comes to our businesses, there's definitely a theme that I'm witnessing and observing - and it's only been a few days into the retrograde - with a lot of my high proximity clients around responsibility. It's about getting really clear on honouring our responsibilities and being willing to look at when we are not honoring those responsibilities, being willing to look at any patterns of escapism and avoidance that we might have.

Like if there's a wobble, do we feel like we're one foot out the door? Do we feel like we want to have an escape plan? Do we feel like we can't honor our commitments anymore? This type of reflection is going to be really powerful during the Saturn retrograde in Pisces, because it's actually, one of the greatest things about retrograde cycles is that they give us access to our deeper programming, that we sometimes don't have the same level of access to when something's not retrograde.

So it's allowing us to access our deeper programming about responsibility and discipline and structure so that we can unlock the most exalted expressions of Saturn, which is legacy, basically legacy like our true soul legacy. And that's what we're all here for. That's what we're all here for. And with Pisces, it's our spiritual legacy. It's our spiritual gifts coming into form and being part of this journey of achievement and creation in the 3D realm.

We're anchoring that. We're bringing the formless into form here on this planet, and it's very beautiful. But there's some maturing that we need to go through. And that's why Saturn Retrograde is here. Oh, so this was a deep one. I hope it resonated with you. Another thing is, you know, showing up to our spiritual gifts, showing up to consistent meditation, showing up, utilizing sound because Pisces rules sound, so utilizing binaural beats.

Let's say you're finding it hard to focus because we might find it a bit hard to focus. We might find it a bit hard to get ourselves to do things at this time because when things are retrograde, it can just feel a little bit confusing and a little bit inward, like the energies, very inward focused.

And when we're dealing with Saturn, which is a very action based and responsibility based planet, sometimes it can just be hard to push ourselves to do things we might have been able to before. That's probably teaching us something about pushing ourselves in general, that that's not actually always the best thing to do. But there are times where those actions that we want to do, do align with our true desires, and they do align with our higher path inner higher desires.

So you can lean into things like binaural beats and put on - because Pisces ruled sound and vibration. - you can put on like a focused binaural beats, a creativity binaural beats and practice more spiritual practices. So if you're having trouble writing stuff for your launch, for example, sitting down and doing a meditation beforehand, sharing a prayer, Pisces rules prayer and surrender. Saturn likes structure, right?

Maybe a night, maybe it's a nightly prayer. Maybe it's a prayer before you sit down and do some creative work on your business. So it's going to really actually deepen our ability to enter into a flow state, because that's one of the beautiful things about these energies as well. So let me wrap it up. We're almost at half an hour here.

Let me know how this landed for you guys. Such an honour to bring these messages. And this is going to be a beautiful, beautiful and really important journey for us all to get through some of those self-sabotage patterns, to face those fears and really deepen in our own spiritual soul legacy.

If you loved that transmission, you will love the Star Stream membership. The Star Stream is my astrology for business community and it is an epic space where I drop in my audio transmissions on the current precise astrology that the entire collective is experiencing. I give my channeled insights on every new planetary cycle, every new solar season, every major moon cycle, and I align those transmissions with practical, proven, high level business strategy to uplevel wealth, social media, sales, mindset, leadership, purpose, embodiment, & magnetism.

And we are doing this all together in a beautiful community of soul family. We have a monthly theme that, it's not exactly monthly. It's aligned with the astrological season. So we have a seasonal theme, a zodiac season theme that we are all moving through together, aligning our business growth with the cosmic rhythm of creation. Knowing what season is really powerful, to focus on different aspects of our self-actualization and our development, which in turn really benefits our business and our purpose path.

You also receive the moon sessions that I do throughout the year and amazing bonus masterclasses, if that sounds fun to you, by the way, it's just $97 and if you don't like it for some reason, you can just cancel before the next billing cycle. Or you can go all in with a year and there is a whole bunch of savings with that and a bonus program and a bonus credit.

So yeah, that's a good option if you know that you are going to enjoy being plugged in, and it's so valuable to be plugged into a space where we're getting consistent guidance, high level strategies,
